More to Mexico migrant deal, Trump says, waves document

REUTERS

The U.S. wants Mexico to be declared a safe third country.

President Donald Trump on Tuesday insisted there was more to the migrant deal with Mexico announced over the weekend, even after Mexican officials unveiled new details of the agreement, and waved around a document that he said proved his point.

Trump did not show the document or give any details, but a Reuters photograph of the folded document allowed reporters to read parts of it.

The U.S.-Mexico migration deal includes a regional asylum plan and Mexico's commitment to examine and potentially change its laws to implement the agreement, according to the copy.

The deal lays out "a regional approach to burden-sharing in relation to the processing of refugee status claims to migrants," the document said.

Trump told reporters he would let Mexico announce it "at the right time," but that "it goes into effect at my option."

On Monday, Trump said Mexico would soon disclose part of the agreement and said that portion would have to be taken up by the Mexican Congress. He gave no more details.

Announcing previously undisclosed details of Friday's deal, Mexican officials said on Monday they had 45 days to show that increased enforcement efforts were effective in reducing flows of migrants, mostly from Central America. If not, they would have to talk with the United States about additional measures.

The United States wants Mexico to be declared a safe third country in which asylum seekers would have to seek safe harbor instead of the United States, a demand Mexico has long rejected.

Mexican Foreign Minister Marcelo Ebrard dropped his previous opposition to that idea in comments on Monday, but said other Latin American countries should share the asylum load with Mexico under such an arrangement.

The deal struck on Friday averted import tariffs on all Mexican goods, which Trump had vowed to impose this week unless Mexico did more to curb migration.

At the White House on Tuesday, Trump praised the agreement and called on congressional Democrats, who control the U.S. House of Representatives, to also help address the waves of migrants seeking to cross the southern U.S. border with Mexico.

"We're going to sit down at some point with the Democrats, we're going to work it all out," he told reporters.

Democrats, along with some of Trump's fellow Republicans, have criticized Trump for tying trade policy to the immigration debate. They have also blasted the Trump administration's handling of the migrants, calling it a humanitarian disaster. REUTERS

Trump receives 'beautiful' letter from Kim Jong Un

2 President Donald Trump cozied up anew to North Korean leader Kim Jong Un on Tuesday, praising a "beautiful" letter he received from Kim and appearing to take a public stance against the CIA spying on him. Trump told reporters at the White House, "I think that something will happen that's going to be very positive," but gave no details. Washington is seeking to rebuild momentum in stalled talks with Pyongyang, aimed at getting North Korea to dismantle its nuclear weapons program. Trump and Kim last met early this year in Hanoi but failed to reach a denuclearization agreement. Trump spoke a day after the Wall Street Journal reported that Kim's slain half-brother, Kim Jong Nam, was a source for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. Kim Jong Nam was killed at the airport in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, in 2017. REUTERS

Amazon to shut restaurant delivery service in US

3 Amazon.com said on Tuesday it would end its U.S. restaurant food delivery service on June 24, giving in to intense competition from GrubHub Inc., DoorDash and Uber Technologies' Uber Eats services. "A small fraction of Amazon employees are affected by this decision, and many of those affected have already found new roles at Amazon," the company said in a statement. "Employees will be offered personalized support to find a new role within, or outside of, the company." Amazon Restaurants was launched in 2015 in Seattle and was designed to give Prime members a way to order meals, apart from products and groceries, through the online retailer. The service was expanded to more than 20 U.S. cities and then to London, where the program ended in November. Shares of Amazon edged up 0.4 percent, while GrubHub rose 8.6 percent. REUTERS

House Speaker Nancy Pelosi. REUTERS

Pelosi is so 'done' with Trump, the 'diverter in chief'

Last week, the president labeled the speaker a "disgrace."

House Speaker Nancy Pelosi said Tuesday she's "done" with talking about President Donald Trump and called him the "diverter in chief," saying he manufactured controversies to distract attention from more important issues.

"I'm done with him. I don't even want to talk about him," Pelosi, a Democrat, said at a Washington conference in reply to a question about Trump's latest barrage of personal insults.

Last week, Trump called Pelosi, the most powerful Democrat, "a disgrace ... a nasty, vindictive, horrible person."

At a U.S. war cemetery in France, with the gravestones of fallen soldiers in the background, Trump said in a Fox News interview, "I call her Nervous Nancy ... Nancy Pelosi's a disaster, okay? She's a disaster."

Asked at the conference how she works with Republican Trump when he throws such insults her way, Pelosi said:

"I just consider the source. My stock goes up every time he attacks me, so what can I say? But let's not spend too much time on that because that's his victory, the diverter in chief, the diverter-of-attention-in-chief."

For part of Trump's presidency, he generally refrained from trash-talking Pelosi as he does many others, but that ended in recent weeks as Democrats intensified their investigations of the president and discussed possibly impeaching him.

Pelosi declined to confirm recent media reports that she had told fellow Democrats that Trump should be in prison, rather than impeached, because of his behavior as outlined in U.S. Special Counsel Robert Mueller's report on Russian interference in the 2016 election and Trump's efforts to impede that probe.

However, she said of impeachment: "It's not off the table."

White House Acting Chief of Staff Mick Mulvaney, speaking to the same conference later Tuesday, expressed skepticism that Pelosi was "done" with Trump. "We're not done with her. I doubt she's done with us," Mulvaney said. "We'll see how long that holds up."

Pelosi has previously talked about Trump's comments and threats being a diversion from the issues. Last week, the speaker said that Trump's threatened tariffs on Mexico were both bad policy and a distraction from the Mueller report.

> "I'm done with him. I don't even want to talk about him."
> Nancy Pelosi, speaker of the House of Representatives

"What bothers me more is that we're talking about that [Trump's insults] instead of how to reduce national debt," Pelosi said at the conference on Tuesday.

She said that even on the question of rebuilding U.S. infrastructure, which Trump had often said he wanted to do, "when it came to pay for it, he diverted attention to personal matters." Trump last month torpedoed a meeting with Democrats on infrastructure, saying he could not work with them as long as they were conducting multiple investigations of him. REUTERS

Biden slams Trump on trade as both visit Iowa

Democratic presidential hopeful Joe Biden criticized President Donald Trump over trade policies he said hurt farmers and choked the auto industry, as both 2020 White House candidates visited the early-voting farm state of Iowa on Tuesday.

The Republican president's trade war with China has crushed American farmers, without countering the challenge that China's policies pose to the United States, Biden said in remarks he planned to deliver at a campaign stop in Davenport, Iowa.

"He thinks he's being tough," Biden said. "Well, it's easy to be tough when someone else is feeling the pain."

Biden, who served for eight years as vice president under former President Barack Obama, was to be in Iowa on the same day as Trump for the first time in the 2020 campaign cycle, offering voters an early peek at the potential general-election matchup between the Democratic front-runner and Republican incumbent who is seeking a second four-year term.

The two men will be competing for the same white, working-class voters in Iowa and elsewhere who helped Trump win the 2016 election. Iowa holds the first Democratic nominating contest next February.

Biden said he hoped Trump's presence in Iowa alongside him on Tuesday would be "a clarifying event." Trump was due to visit an ethanol plant in Council Bluffs on Tuesday before delivering remarks at an Iowa Republican Party dinner in Des Moines. Biden is making a four-city swing over two days.

The Trump administration last month unveiled a $16 billion farm aid package to counter losses from a 10-month trade war with China.

The Trump administration last month unveiled a $16 billion farm aid package to counter losses from a 10-month trade war with China. American farmers, a key Trump constituency, have been among the hardest hit in the trade war.

Trump's tariffs on steel and other metals have hit U.S. automakers, who are also concerned that future tariffs could be imposed on everything from critical technologies and components to fully assembled vehicles.

Biden noted that Obama bailed out the U.S. auto industry after the 2008 financial collapse.

"Now I'm watching Trump destroy the industry President Obama and I helped save," Biden said.

Biden, who leads a large field of contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination, hit Trump hard on China, saying the president's policies will not be effective in the long run against China's growing influence and technological advances.

He said China is building roads, bridges and high-speed rail, and positioning itself to lead the world in renewable energy, while Trump pursues a "damaging and erratic trade war."

"While Trump is tweeting, China is making massive investments in technologies of the future," Biden said.

Trump promised this week to go ahead with a new round of tariffs on Chinese goods if no progress is made with Chinese President Xi Jinping at the G20 summit later this month in Japan. Trump has said he expects to meet with Xi, but the Chinese have declined to confirm any summit.

Biden called for more investment in scientific research, infrastructure and a modern workforce to help counter China, and to build a united front with allies to challenge China's "abusive behavior." REUTERS

Jon Stewart assails Congress for ignoring 9/11 first responders fund

"Al-Qaeda didn't shout, 'Death to Tribeca,'" the comedian told Congress.

Jon Stewart, the popular former host of the late-night comedy program "The Daily Show," criticized members of Congress for not attending a hearing on Tuesday on renewing funding for a program that provides health care to first responders who were sickened responding to the Sept. 11 attacks.

"Sick and dying, they brought themselves down here to speak ... and no one," Stewart said, pointing to a mostly empty dais. "Shameful, it's an embarrassment to the country and a stain on this institution. You should be ashamed of yourselves for those who aren't here but you won't be because accountability doesn't appear to be something that occurs in this chamber."

Stewart was testifying before the Judiciary Committee's Subcommittee on the Constitution, Civil Rights and Civil Liberties about a renewal of the 9/11 first responders health care fund. Most of the panel's 14 members were not in attendance.

"Where are they? It would be one thing if their callous indifference and rank hypocrisy was benign, but it's not," Stewart said. "Their indifference cost these men and women their most valuable commodity, time, one thing they're running out of."

The fund, originally approved for five years in 2010, provides medical treatment for emergency responders sickened by toxic dust inhaled at the World Trade Center site in New York in the days following the attack.

Republicans had balked at the price of the original legislation and, as a compromise at the time, Democrats agreed to authorize the fund only for five years and cover the cost with an excise tax. That has set up a fight every five years to get Congress to renew the program.

Stewart criticized Congress for continuing to require the fund be renewed every five years — pointing to the panel's top Republican, Rep. Mike Johnson, for saying that Congress has to balance other emergencies as well.

"I'm pretty sure what's going to happen five years from now, more of these men and women are going to get sick and they are going to die and I am awfully tired of hearing that it's a 9/11 New York issue," Stewart said. "Al-Qaeda didn't shout, 'Death to Tribeca.'" REUTERS

Donald Cramer Jr., 52, of Philadelphia — NEW JERSEY STATE POLICE

Good Samaritan saved woman from Philly sexual assault

A man with a good eye and true grit ran into the woods to save a woman from an attempted abduction.

NATE HOMAN
letters@metro.us

Police are praising a good Samaritan who thwarted an attempted sexual assault along a New Jersey highway last week.

Motorist John Bishop spotted a disturbance on the side of I-295 near Mount Holly at about 3 p.m.. He told police he saw Donald Cramer Jr., 52, of Philadelphia grab a woman and drag her into a nearby wooded area. Bishop pulled over once he realized what he'd seen and ran to stop an attempted sexual assault. He pulled his truck over, threw it in reverse, and his plans to buy pool supplies were put on hold.

"When I first saw those arms come out of the bushes, it took a second to register," Bishop told the Burlington County Times.

"I told him I had a gun in back pocket — I didn't — and he didn't even listen," Bishop said.

Cramer also brandished a knife and threatened to kill the woman, according to NJ.com.

He was able to keep Cramer at the scene until troopers arrived and took him into custody.

"I wanted to get him up near the road, so I drug him by the arm and neck up the hill and threw him over the guardrail onto Route 73," Bishop, of Burlington Township, told the newspaper.

Mount Laurel Police Department charged Cramer with kidnapping, criminal attempted sexual assault, aggravated assault, and related offenses.

State Police officials praised Bishop for his quick thinking and heroic reaction.

"As troopers, we respond to a variety of calls every day, and there are times when we must place our lives in jeopardy," state police said in a statement. "Citizens are not necessarily held to this standard, but there are also times when good Samaritans step in and risk their lives in order to protect others."

'Annabelle will come back stronger and bloodier'
GARY DAUBERMAN

The writer of films such as "Annabelle," "Annabelle: Creation," "The Nun" and the new adaptation of "It" makes his directorial debut with "Annabelle Comes Home."

PATRICIA CARRANZA
letters@metro.us

"The Conjuring" universe, created by James Wan, has become one of the most successful worldwide, which could not be understood without the Annabelle doll, which, like the films of "The Conjuring," has managed to terrify millions of spectators worldwide, raising more than $600 million at the box office with its first two films.

In this third installment, "Annabelle Comes Home," the doll is back to cause more horror, but now at the home of the Warrens, who must face what they never imagined. Metro chatted with the film's director and writer, Gary Dauberman, to learn more.

What were the biggest challenges of making this movie?
Nowadays just having an approved project to shoot a film is already a great challenge, and even a miracle. However, I think one of the biggest pressures I had was trying to make a film comparable with the previous ones and with "The Conjuring" universe because they were very successful. I could not sleep thinking about doing something big for this film, but I think it's part of our job, always doing something better and surprising each time.

Each Annabelle film has a plot and a purpose. What is the main plot of "Annabelle Comes Home"?
I wanted to focus more on the story of Ed Warren (Patrick Wilson), Lorraine Warren (Vera Farmiga) and Judy (Mckenna Grace) as a family, who will have to face Annabelle because this time, she will come back stronger and bloodier. The film continues to combine moments of great suspense and shock.

It's your directorial debut. How do you feel about that?
I am very excited. It is a very big responsibility so I wanted to focus on every detail to really frighten the audience. I like for everything to have a touch of mystery. But definitely what I have enjoyed most as a director is having the support of the whole team because when I felt that I needed some advice, I spoke with James [Wan, producer of the film] and he always had something good to tell me. Besides, I feel closer to the project, so everything went very well and we hope that people love this film.

Is it different to be the screenwriter than the director?
Yes, it is definitely different because when you write the script, you must be very specific and make sense of what you want to see on the screen. This time, since I am in both parts, I feel like I'm more open to accept opinions or change some things that may look better. Ideas come to mind lots of times when I'm shooting. We could say that some scenes came out of a conversation or improvisation — obviously without taking away the meaning of the story — and I like to play with that. I think that accepting comments is what gives life to the stories.

Fit Academy's pod. KORY AVERSA

If you've strolled around Northern Liberties lately, you may have noticed a 33-foot-tall, 13,000-pound robot from Burning Man towering over you and giving a friendly wave. That massive robot is the centerpiece in Post Brothers' latest mixed-use community destination, Piazza Pod Park. The park just opened last week, and already Philadelphians have flocked to the space to check out the retail spaces, art, fitness components, entertainment and more.

"The Piazza is the very heart and soul of this ever-evolving neighborhood that continues to grow and expand at record pace," said Post Brothers CEO Mike Pestronk, in a release. "We are proud to present Northern Liberties with an exciting new community space at Piazza Pod Park. Post Brothers is thrilled to bring a renewed energy back to the area — and together light the spark for great things to come. We are proud to partner with some of Philadelphia's very best small businesses and restaurants."

Piazza Pod Park is truly distinctive, from the unique setup to the eclectic vendors and one-of-a-kind entertainment — it's a first for the City of Brotherly Love. The pods in the park range in size and color depending on what the pod holds. The two-level enclosed and climate-controlled pod at the center of the park holds a tasty dining spot, a rooftop deck with spectacular views, entertainment and of course, Beebot the robot. (the vessels range from 10 to 40 feet in length) hold some delicious food vendors such as Spread Bagelry, Tiki Tako, Craft Beer Concepts Inspired by BRU Craft & Wurst, Essen Bakery, French Toast Bites by Lokal Artisan Foods, Empanada Box, Mama Maria's Italian Ice and Dim Sum House's Lil' Sum Sum — all of whom are featuring some items that are exclusive to the park.

Thirsty for more? Piazza Pod Park has plenty of beverage pods including Urban Village Brewing Company, Wine Bar by Urban Village Brewing Company and Craft Cocktail Concepts Inspired by Blume, who are also featuring cocktail creations only available at the park such as their White Whiskey Mango Margarita and Espresso Colada.

Trying all of the indulgent food and drinks is definitely worth it, but the park also offers another pod that will make enjoying all of the treats a bit easier: Fit Academy, owned by Osayi Osunde. According to the release, Osunde is a certified, well-known personal trainer and Fit Academy was even named April's "Studio of the Month" by Philadelphia Magazine's Be Well division. Philadelphians can expect to get hard-hitting and beneficial workouts at Fit Academy's pod as well as a one-of-a-kind experience.

Other miscellaneous pods include Tildie's Toy Box, offering gender-neutral toys and books plus creatively stimulating opportunities for kids, and the Nursing Pod, offering two private rooms with air-conditioning, a comfortable rocker, changing table, sink and soothing warm decor.

Philadelphians can also check out the Think Cube Installation, Playground (with a dog park!) and entertainment areas. The Think Cube is made of 185 interconnected water-storage containers, features 100,000 LEDs and is 800 feet long. According to the release, Think Cube shows the unity of the community by inviting all to stroll along the path bound and illuminated by the two rows of cubes, creating a public space to be appreciated by neighbors and visitors alike. The playground area is perfect for kids with a climbing sculpture, a special kids' hideaway house, rocking horses and more equipment coming soon, while the music and entertainment stage will feature special events all year round, including music concerts, performances and more.

Piazza Pod Park is located at 1069 Germantown Ave. and is open every day from 7 a.m. to noon.

Drowning in products? Here's a skincare guide

The most expensive cream made with Rapunzel's magic hair will not work if it is not made for your skin type.

LUZ LANCHEROS
letters@metro.us

It is expected that the skin care industry will generate $141.3 billion worldwide just at this part of the year, according to data by Statista. But, incredibly, although there is an oversupply of beauty bloggers and tutorials on how to pick products, people are still looking for basic information about what suits them the best.

That's why when you Google cleansers and moisturizers, for example, for each product and skin type there are around 20-24 million search results. Metrowith the help of Medipiel dermatological center, has developed a special guide on the components and basic products that could help you save money and see the results.

1. BEFORE

It is important, according to expert Luisa Álvarez, to always visit dermatologist before setting any routine for skin care. There are two types of routines: day and night ones. It must be consistent to achieve changes or maintain the good state of the skin.

2. DAY ROUTINE

It consists of cleaning, hydration and protection. For each type of skin there is a soap to be used during the day and night. It depends on medical diagnosis.

- CLEANING. You can use micellar water, like La Roche Posay, ($15.99). But for every type of skin there is a variety of products.
- OILY SKIN CLEANERS. There are soaps in gel to regulate and matify the skin. You can use the Sebium Gel Moussant ($14.90), among others, according to your needs.
- MIXED SKIN CLEANSERS / SENSITIVE / DRY. For example, cleansing milks, such as Hidraderm, by Sesderma ($42).

3. HYDRATION

It is the third step of the routine. it is recommended for oily, dry and mixed skin types. Tonics could be an option.

SERUMS GUIDE

These highly concentrated products are moisturizers and supplements for something you want to treat, from expression lines to brightness. They serve a lot especially for mixed and oily skin types. A dermatologist should determine what serum you might need. Remember, one drop could be applied on the entire area. It should be also placed on the neck, ears and elbows.

- SERA FOR DRY SKIN: Paula's Choice ($37)
- SERUMS FOR OILY SKIN: Neutrogena Hydroboost Hydrating Serum ($20)
- SERA FOR SENSITIVE SKIN Clarins Double Serum ($124)

4. PROTECTION

This is also determined by the dermatologist and the product is not only applied to the face but to all places exposed to the sun. You have to take into account what your skin type is, when to reapply the product and how to do it. There are mineral powder or anti-glare products that can help the skin.

- FOR OILY SKIN: Cetaphil Pro Oil Absorbing Moisturizer ($40)
- FOR DRY / SENSITIVE SKIN: Drunk Elephant Umbra Dye ($36)
- FOR MIXED SKIN: EltaMD UV Clear ($35)

Morgan nets 5, USWNT destroys Thailand

The U.S. women's national team recorded a record-breaking victory in their World Cup opener.

The United States women's national team took full advantage of an opportunity to make an opening statement at the 2019 FIFA Women's World Cup, rolling through minnows Thailand, 13-0, on Tuesday.

The blowout was the USWNT's largest win ever at the tournament, eclipsing the 7-0 win over Chinese Taipei in the quarterfinals of the 1991 World Cup, and the largest victory ever at the competition.

Alex Morgan led the U.S. onslaught with four goals, a triumphant return to the World Cup after being hampered with injuries during the 2015 competition. She had three career World Cup goals entering Tuesday evening.

She joins American Michelle Akers as the only player in Women's World Cup history to score at least four goals in a single match. Akers pulled off the feat in that rout of Chinese Taipei 28 years ago.

The California native received plenty of support with braces (two goals) from Rose Lavelle and Samantha Mewis while Lindsey Horan, Megan Rapinoe, Mallory Pugh and Carli Lloyd added on to the American dominance.

Morgan — who is healthy at a World Cup after being limited in 2015 — got the U.S. on the board in the 12th minute when she headed in a perfect cross by Kelley O'Hara. It was Morgan's fourth goal in her World Cup career.

It came just moments after Morgan initially had a goal wiped away in the fifth minute due to an offsides call following a brilliant long-range cross

Sports betting 101: What are totals?

SugarHouse Casino's sportsbook manager dishes out the basics of sports betting.

JIM LLEWELLYN

Jim Llewellyn is the sportsbook manager at SugarHouse Casino.

GETTY IMAGES

A popular bet to make at MetroBet.us/Sugar is on game totals, as opposed to betting on who will actually win the game.

Totals, often called "over/under" bets, are the combined score of both teams. When wagering on totals, you bet on whether the combined score of both sides will go over or under a set number.

For example, SugarHouse might set the total at 64 for an Eagles game against a high-scoring opponent. This means that we predict that the two teams will score a combined total of 64 points. You will then place a wager on whether the actual combined score will be over or under that amount. If you think that one or both teams has a particularly strong offense and it will be a high-scoring affair, you would bet over. If you think it will be a defensive struggle, ending in low scores on both or either side, then you would bet under. If the final score is something like 36-33, then the combined score would be 69, meaning the game is an over. If the final score is something like 30-28, making the combined score 58, then it is an under.

Once in a while, the combined scores will hit exactly on the total. In the 64 points total example, if the score ended up being something like 33-31, then the combined score would be 64, exactly the predicted total. When this happens it is called a push or a tie. When this occurs, no one wins the bet and you would simply get your money back. To avoid pushes, sportsbooks will often set the total at a half-number, like 64.5. This way, if the final combined score was 64, it would be an under, and a 65 would be an over.

To take advantage of all of these betting opportunities and more, go to MetroBet.us/Sugar and enter promo code METROBET to get a first-deposit match bonus for up to $250.

D-Backs vs. Phillies betting preview

Diamondbacks at Phillies

Home and road splits bear out that the Phillies have a significant advantage over the Diamondbacks in Wednesday's series finale at Citizens Bank Park.

Merrill Kelly (6-6, 4.12 ERA) is the starter for Arizona, and though he held the Blue Jays' woeful bats to one run on three hits in seven innings of work in Toronto on June 7, his road ERA for the season is a ghastly 6.00.

Bet now at MetroBet.us/Sugar and get up to $250 in a first-deposit match bonus using promo code METROBET.

Kelly's sparkling 8.75 SO/W ratio at home contrasts sharply with his 1.10 SO/W ratio outside Chase Field.

Zach Eflin (6-5, 2.88 ERA) counters for Philadelphia, and he's 4-1 with a 2.10 ERA in five starts at home this season. The D-Backs are sixth in batting average with runners in scoring position, but Eflin tends to bear down in big spots, posting a .192 batting average against on the year in this situation.

Bettors may want to steer clear of Philly's shaky bullpen, though (24th in ERA last 14 days).

The play: Phillies moneyline first five innings

Game 7 a monster betting opportunity

Betting on sports, made simple.

MATT BURKE

Matt Burke is a veteran sports journalist and the Founder and Editor in Chief of MetroBet.

We have an exciting new offer for you Metro Philadelphia readers out there, as you can now get a $250 first-deposit match bonus right now at MetroBet.us/Sugar by using the promo code METROBET.

Be sure to take advantage of this limited-time offer!

One game that will be highly wagered on across the country tonight is Game 7 of the Stanley Cup Final between the Boston Bruins and St. Louis Blues.

MetroBet.us/Sugar currently has the Bruins as -167 favorites and the Blues at +135. The total is set at 5.0 goals with the over at -108 and the under at -115. The puckline is Blues -220 and Boston at +175.

If you bet $25 on the Bruins to win at -167 at MetroBet.us/Sugar, you would win $14.97 and get a payout of $39.97. If you bet $25 on the Blues to win tonight's do-or-die affair at +135, you would win $33.75 and get a payout of $58.75.

Both goaltenders are scorching-hot headed into this one, though Boston's Tuukka Rask has been a tad better over the past two months of the incredibly long Stanley Cup postseason. The Bruins' netminder has only given up four or more goals in one game this entire playoff run (23 games) and that occurred way back in late April in Game 4 against the Maple Leafs (a game in which Boston still won).

GETTY IMAGES

Perhaps the most remarkable Rask numbers of all this postseason concern what he has done in games in which the Bruins can clinch a series. In Game 7 of the first round against the Maple Leafs, Rask made 32 saves and allowed just one goal in a 5-1 Boston win. In Game 6 of the semifinals against Columbus, Rask made 39 stops and shut out the Blue Jackets in a 3-0 Bruins victory. In the last round against Carolina, Rask again pitched a shutout in the clincher. In Game 4 on the road, Rask stopped 24 shots en route to a 4-0 B's win.

The problem for the Bruins this time, however, is that Blues goaltender Jordan Binnington has been nearly as impressive as Rask this entire postseason. He also has been responding extremely well to bad outings in the playoffs. There have been five games this postseason in which Binnington has given up four goals or more. In the next games following those clunkers, Binnington has allowed two goals or fewer in each of them.

You can bet on this game now at MetroBet.us/Sugar.

Stanley Cup Final Game 7 betting preview

Blues at Bruins

The Boston Bruins have beat the St. Louis Blues, 21-14, in aggregate goals in this Stanley Cup Final, yet a Game 7 will be played at TD Garden on Wednesday night.

Bettors should bank on the Bruins to secure yet another championship for the city of Boston here.

This will be the first Game 7 of a Stanley Cup Final since 2011, in which several of these Bruins beat the Canucks, 4-0, in Vancouver. Despite the road team emerging victorious there, home teams are 12-4 all-time in this spot.

Bet now at MetroBet.us/Sugar and get up to $250 in a first-deposit match bonus using promo code METROBET.

The Bruins have a decided edge over the Blues in special teams. Their penalty kill hasn't allowed a power-play goal since Game 3 and is a perfect 6-for-6 at home in this series. Meanwhile, Boston's power play got back on track by potting a goal during a 5-1 onslaught in Game 6 at the Enterprise Center.

The Bruins are firing at 33 percent during the Stanley Cup Final against St. Louis.

Blues rookie netminder Jordan Binnington has been uneven in this series but demonstrated bounce-back ability off blowout losses. However, counterpart Tuukka Rask has a solid .925 save percentage in the Stanley Cup Final. The Bruins should prevail in a low-scoring NHL season finale.

The play: Bruins and Under Parlay

Lindsey Horan (left), Sam Mewis (No. 3), Alex Morgan (13) and Rose Lavelle (16) all scored in the U.S. win. GETTY IMAGES from center back Abby Dahlkemper. Had Morgan not touched it, the initial header from Lindsey Horan likely would have rolled in.

The midfield magician Lavelle doubled the Americans' lead in the 20th minute with a cannon of a left-footed shot from 25 yards out, the low chance fizzing through the fingertips of Thailand keeper Sukanya Chor Charoenying.

It was a moment of firsts for the Cincinnati, Ohio, native as she scored her first World Cup goal in her first World Cup game.

Lindsey Horan closed out the United States' scoring in the first half, cleaning up a deflection in front of the Thai goal off a driven ball sent in by a Tobin Heath free kick from just outside in the 32nd minute.

The U.S. didn't take its foot off the pedal in the second half, grabbing a fourth in the 50th minute when Mewis' deflected shot snuck inside the left post. Not only was it Mewis' first-ever World Cup goal, but it was also the 800th goal ever scored at the Women's World Cup.

Her goal sparked a raucous four-goal explosion that took all of six minutes to make the game an embarrassment for Thailand.

It was all repeat scorers as Morgan, Mewis and Lavelle got on the scoresheet to make it 7-0 by the 56th minute.

Morgan would complete her hat trick in the 74th minute, opening up enough space with a roll-back cut to get the ball on her right foot at the top of the box for a clean finish into the bottom-left corner.

She would add two more in the 81st and 87th minutes to complete her historic night while capping off another explosive run that saw five goals in total scored in that 13-minute span.

The 10 goals in the second half were the most scored during that span in World Cup history.

While a lopsided score may seem harsh — forcing some to implore the U.S. to take their foot off the pedal — every goal counts. With goal differential being the main tiebreaker in group play, a plus-nine mark puts the United States well atop Sweden in Group F play.

The USWNT is next in action on Sunday against Chile while Thailand meets Sweden.

How does your child's sleep affect his/her health?

We want to hear your thoughts on how to help children get a good night's sleep and improve their overall health!

Researchers at Temple University are conducting a research study to learn more about how changes in sleep affect children's weight status and type 2 diabetes risk.

To be eligible, your child must:
Be 8-14 years old
Sleep 9.5 hours or less each night

Families who are eligible and enroll in the study will be compensated for their time.

Assessments can be scheduled at either:

- Temple University (3223 N. Broad Street) or
- The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia (CHOP; 34th St and Civic Center Blvd).

Please call 215-707-8998 to see if you and your child qualify for this study or scan this code on your mobile device:
